JOS. A. MABRY & Co.,

For the Whig.

RULE & TAYLOR,

For the Chronicle.

RAMAGE & Co.,

For the Press and Herald and Press and Messenger.

To Candidates.

We are prepared to print election tickets at $2 per thousand.

Shocked.

Several persons near the depot were slightly shocked by lightning on Sunday afternoon, which struck the railroad track.

Come and See us.

We extend a cordial invitation to our friends to call and see us, whenever they are in the city. We are always glad to see them.

Sealed.

The Greenville National Union says that B. F. Haynes was severely scolded in the face, at Cold Spring, near that place, by the explosion of a coffee pot.

Address Wanted.

Any of our readers knowing the address of E. R. Owens, late Lieutenant and R. Q. M., 4th Regiment Mounted Infantry, Tennessee Volunteers, will confer a favor by forwarding it to the editor of the CHRONICLE.

Mad Dog Killed.

Yesterday afternoon a mad dog was killed on Front street, near Mr. Park's mill. One of Mr. Fleniken's boys crept under a house where the rabid animal had taken refuge and pulled him out, when he was dispatched with pistol shots and stones. Push your canine ordinance, Alderman Sheppard.

Art Gallery.

We spent half an hour yesterday afternoon in Mr. Phillips' gallery, in Atkins' building, looking at the many specimens of art. The gallery is well lighted, and being a splendid artist, Mr. Phillips is doing good work in his line. We were especially interested in his ivory-type pictures, which are superb. Parties favoring Mr. P. with their patronage are certain of being pleased.

Temperance Rally.

We understand that there will be a grand temperance rally at Meridian Sun Division room, Sons of Temperance, in the 4th civil district of this county, one week from to-morrow, Rev. G. Taylor, of this city, and Rev. M. P. Jackson, and M. M. Callen, will deliver addresses. A large crowd will be present and a pleasant time is expected.

Our Paper Abroad.

"A correspondent of the Knoxville (Tennessee) CHRONICLE mentions a rumor that ex-President Johnson is about to go into mercantile business and open a wholesale and retail store in Greenville."

The above from Lloyd's London Newspaper, shows that our paper is not unknown in the metropolis of the Old World, and though merely a straw, yet as straws show the way the wind blows, it is evident that the CHRONICLE is extending its circulation.

Ship Your Wheat to Georgia.

We call attention to the advertisement of Messrs. Fain & Powell, Commission Merchants, Atlanta Ga., to be found elsewhere. We knew Mr. Parrott in antebellum days, and always found him reliable, accommodating and capable of giving satisfaction in any business he was engaged. Those wishing to consign their produce to an Atlanta house will find this firm reliable and competent. Our East Tennessee friends will find that they do not carry politics into their business, as an evidence of which they advertise in the CHRONICLE, though differing with us politically.

The Federal Court and Grand Jury.

In his charge to the Grand Jury yesterday, Judge Trigg directed their attention to the disabilities imposed by the Fourteenth Amendment, and said that by a recent act of Congress, certain severe disabilities were prescribed as a punishment for persons who, knowing of their disabilities, held office either under State or Federal government. The different classes mentioned applied to persons who, before the war, as members of Congress or as officers of the United States, or as members of any State Legislature or as any Executive or Judicial officer of any State, took the oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and afterwards engaged in rebellion against the same or gave aid or comfort to the enemy.

The foreman of the Grand Jury is ex-Judge Bridges, of Athens—not a Conservative as the Whig claimed—who has had several years experience on the bench, and is, therefore, familiar with the duties devolving upon him. The jury is composed of a highly intelligent and very fine body of men, and will discharge their duties with impartiality and a due sense of their responsibilities.

Western North Carolina Railroad.

We are sorry to learn that work on this road is not being pushed forward with the rapidity desired by those having the matter in charge, on account of a deficiency in the funds. Some time ago, it will be remembered, the former President squandered several millions of dollars in North Carolina bonds granted to this road. M. S. Littlefield, Esq., the President, in setting up the affairs of the road, reported that about $140,000 was in the hands of New York bankers, subject to his order, and sent a sight draft on the First National Bank of this city to Mr. G. M. Roberts, who is connected with that road. Such, unfortunately, was not the case, it seems, as Mr. R. has been here for two weeks, and the money has not been paid, though he has telegraphed frequently to learn the cause of the delay, but received only beggarly excuses concerning the matter.

A Card.

MESSES. EDITORS: Your suggestion relative to Judge C. W. Jones is a good one, and well timed. We need the Judge's experienced counsel in managing the affairs of the County Court. His practical knowledge of what will be for the best interest to the whole county is valuable indeed, therefore I trust he will accept the office of Justice of the Peace—that being the only way the Court can retain him as Chairman. I feel assured that I express the sentiments of every member of the Court when I say that Judge Jones' management of the county business has been correct to a fault. His removal by the miserable repeaters fails to meet the approval of the honest people who think more of an intelligent and economical transaction of the county concerns than they do of making offices for partisan pets to occupy.

A MAGISTRATE.

Mysterious Outrage.
On Monday evening, as Mr. Christian Baumgardner was walking up Gay street, some person threw on him a small quantity of some "aid," which he at the time thought was water, and supposing it to have been thrown accidentally, he thought nothing of the matter until he reached home, when, feeling a burning sensation on the back of his neck or shoulder, he made an examination, and found that the liquid cast upon him had discolored his coat and shirt in dark colored spots, and where it had soaked through, the skin was in inflamed, which have since broken out in running sores. This is a serious matter, and if intentional, is far more reprehensible than the practice of vitriol throwing indulged in by ruffians elsewhere. We hope the police will ferret the matter to the bottom.

East Tennessee Agricultural Society.

The East Tennessee Agricultural Society have just gotten out their posters for the fair to be held here in the fall. $3,000 in premiums will be awarded, besides special premiums. We are informed that work on the buildings will be commenced in a few days; the fencing will also soon be commenced. The whole matter will be conducted on a grand scale, and can scarcely fail of success. Much credit is due Mr. Charlton for his efforts in behalf of the enterprise, and the agricultural interests of East Tennessee, and we hope that he will see a full fruition of his hopes in an increased interest in those things pertaining to the improvement of the farming community.

Cotton Factory at Nashville.

The people of Nashville will soon boast of one of the largest cotton factories in the South. A company, with a capital of $200,000, has commenced the erection of a building for the purpose. The main building is 300 feet long by 60 feet wide, and is to be four stories high. It is thought that work will be commenced about January, 1871, and that employment will be given to 300 hands. All kinds of cotton fabrics will be manufactured, including prints. We rejoice to see such an enterprise started in our State, and hope it is only the precursor of many others to follow in various portions of the State.

Criminal Court Clerk.

We refer our readers to the announcement of Capt. A. D. Haynes, for the office of Criminal Court Clerk of Knox county. Capt. Haynes served with gallantry in the Confederate army and lost a leg during the Atlanta campaign. The Conservatives will have a chance to vote for a fighting reb. If they intend running the race on a strict party basis. We are acquainted with Capt. Haynes and know that he is eminently qualified to fill the position.

The Race.

Two of the candidates for the Clerkship of the Criminal Court are each minus a leg, lost in service. Mr. H. C. Tarwater, one of the proprietors of the CHRONICLE, served in the Federal army, and Capt. Haynes, one of his competitors, was an officer in the 63d Virginia regiment, Confederate.

The old soldiers of both armies can vote for either with the certainty of knowing that they are tried and true; not meaning anything derogatory to other gentlemen in the field.

Some persons are always slow, and unless they call soon, may fail to get the bargains that are daily offered at Ray & Boyd's. In Dry Goods, Carpets, &c. NEW GOODS JUST RECEIVED!

June 21st

Cattle Disease.

We are told that a new and fatal disease has appeared among the cattle in this vicinity. The head swells very much, and the animal suffers great pain. It is supposed to have been introduced by the Texas cattle, though we are not prepared to say how this is.

I. P. Alley.

Through the press of business last Saturday, we neglected calling attention to the announcement of "Squire Alley." He is one of the gentlemen thrown out of office by the new Constitution, and has a host of friends who will work hard to restate him. He has held office so long that we need say nothing about him.

Enlarged.

The KNOXVILLE DAILY CHRONICLE (by the way, one of the liveliest and most neatly printed papers in the State) appeared on the 9th inst. in an enlarged form, having added altogether some four more columns to its dimensions. We are pleased to see this evidence of prosperity in the CHRONICLE.—Kington Tennessee.

Announcement.

We call attention to the announcement of Maj. Will. R. McBath, which appears in another column. He filed with acceptance the office of Circuit Court Clerk, which position he resigned a year ago to take his seat in the Legislature, which he still holds. His urbanity of manners and politeness of disposition has made him many warm friends. He is too well known to require any further notice from us.

Economic Housekeeping.

We have now before us a circular published by the Sea Moss Marine Co., which we advise every one who takes an interest in the food question to read. It describes, concisely, the origin and uses of the edible Sea Moss Marine, and presents an array of scientific and other testimony in its favor which can hardly fail to convince the most skeptical of its paramount claims as an economic, wholesome, digestible, eminently nutritious, and very pleasant addition to the national cuisine. This is at least the conclusion at which many of the most eminent hotel keepers, artistic cooks, physicians, chemists, merchants, &c., of New York, have arrived, and they state their opinions on the subject over their own signatures, in the pamphlet to which we allude.

A Card from Judge Temple.

The following card is a copy of one furnished to the Whig for publication, and we insert it at the request of Chancellor Temple:

Editor of the Whig:
In my absence, last week, there appeared in your paper an article purporting to give my testimony before the Reconstruction Committee of Congress, on the 13th of February, 1869. I ask, as a simple act of justice, that you will publish that part of my testimony as it appears in the report of the committee, rather than the pretended part published originally by the Messenger.

As a key to the testimony, let it be kept in mind that I was under examination alone in reference to the state of affairs in Tennessee, at that time and as to the sentiments and feelings of the late Confederates. In reply to a question by Mr. Blumhagen, I stated that I did not "think they" (the Confederates) "would ever go to war again;" that "they are inclined to submit to the existing state of affairs;" that if "a milder policy were adopted (by Congress) it would have a tendency to strengthen the Union element, and that I thought that a majority of the Southern people entertained a feeling of kindness for those who were formerly their slaves," &c., &c.

Finally, in reply to a question by Mr. Grider, a Democratic member from Kentucky, after speaking of the good effect the admission of our members of Congress would have in restoring quiet, I said: "I do not pretend to say, nor do I mean to be understood in anything I have said, to say that the original secessionists in our State have changed their hearts. I think their hearts are just where they were four years ago; but a great many of them are acquiescing in the present condition of things, and I think a good many of them intend to continue to acquiesce in the supremacy of the government of the United States."

But I think their hearts are just where they were before; or, at least, that is the case with a majority of them.

Question by Mr. Grider.—I will ask you whether those gentlemen (the original secessionists) who are acquiescing, who say they are willing to submit to the government, are not generally men of capacity and influence and consideration?

Answer.—Yes sir; they are generally, so far as I know, for those are the persons I generally come in contact with. I have not come in contact with many of the common refugees, and I know very little about their sentiment. It is generally persons in position with whom I have come in contact with, or with whom I have had conversation. I have had conversation with a great many of them, and they are men, generally, of standing and respectability, or were so before the war. A great many of them have fallen off very much, in my estimation, since that.

It will be seen from the above that my whole answer was in reference to the persons concerning whom Mr. Grider had enquired; that is to say, in reference to the original secessionists who were acquiescing. They were the class of Confederates I had mostly come in contact with, as clients, or defendants in suits, as contradistinguished from the common soldier, or refugees, who were not so generally used or indicted. The word, "people," as printed in the Messenger, is not in the testimony at all, but the word is "refugees." Some one simply altered the word.

I regret that my whole testimony, as printed by Congress, from which I have quoted, cannot be given. It was taken down by a short-hand reporter—not written nor revised by me; and I don't think I ever saw it until in print.

Now, Mr. Editor, I asked you to publish the foregoing ten days ago. I urged the proprietors of the CHRONICLE not to indulge in any personalities against my competitor, but to place the canvass on grounds befitting the high office we seek. I have protested, and I still protest, against running the race on political grounds. If personal or political matters are introduced, degrading to the canvass, it is not my fault. Neither I nor my friends throw the first stone.

Respectfully,

O. P. TEMPLE.

FINANCIAL.

Knoxville Quotations of Money and Stocks.

OFFICE KNOXVILLE CHRONICLE, Monday, July 18, 1870.

Gold closed in New York to-day at 1.201. Owing to the war news from Europe, gold has of course advanced, and stocks and bonds have declined, although gold is worth no more, and stocks and bonds, in fact, no less. The Gold Room has been the theater of excitement to-day, and yet gold has not advanced as many this morning believed it would do, on account of the war news. Gold was quoted at 10 A.M. at 1.144; 10.05, 11.14; and closed at 3 o'clock at 1.154; at 3.10, 1.15. Market excited and strong, and but little gold offered. The buyers are principally foreign bankers.

Gold is not needed for any purpose here, and there is no reason why it should advance in price. Our bonds will be regarded in Europe as the very best of security, and if there is a general upheaval there, money will come here to be invested in Government bonds. The war news has unsettled matters to-day, but in a few days men will be cool and look at the situation calmly, and then bonds and stocks will advance—as a foreign war cannot but be greatly beneficial to our country in a pecuniary point of view.

Tennessee bonds, 6's, ex-coupon sold at 65c; new, 68.
